Says More Profit in Horse Power Than in the Tractor

One of the best meeting held by the Wetaskiwin Kiwanis Club for some time took place on Tuesday evening, when Dr. Asmott, specialist on plant diseases with the University of Alberta, gave a very lucid and interesting address. He traced the development of cereals as food for men from the earliest date, and stated that barley was one of the most ancient foods, and the most common variety was hulless. He also stated that the Jews in the time of King Solomon also used barley as a food. He showed a sample of barley taken from a tomb of King Solomon, which was some 3,000 years old. It was black and is almost identical with the black barley grown today. Rye was also a human food until recently, but has been largely replaced by wheat.

He said the University was interested in getting a wheat that will resist drought, rust and smut, and to obtain this end, experiments are being carried on with five hundred varieties of wheat, three hundred varieties of oats, and one hundred and sixty varieties of barley. Some experiments take as long as twenty years to obtain the desired result. This takes a lot of work and technical training. He quoted a number of figures and showed that Canada produced only one-twelfth of the world's supply. Canada exports 30% of her wheat, and uses 20%. These figures are reversed in the United States. Canada has no monopoly on the method of production, as the Argentine, Australia, Russia and other countries can use the same machinery and methods. One of the features of Canada's wheat is quality, which is produced by climate. The climate of Russia is quite comparable with that of Canada. Speaking of the future, Canada has an advantage over Russia, which cannot produce much for export.

The doctor submitted figures which showed that it cost from eighteen to twenty dollars an acre to produce wheat. Therefore, if an acre yielded 20 bushels, it must be sold at $1.00 per bushel to meet the cost of production. He also gave figures showing the great loss to farmers from drought, frost and damp grain as well as weeds.

He also showed that mechanized farming could not be conducted as economically as with horses, covering a period of years.

Richard Ballhorn, Master Farmer, and W. Irvine, M.P., were guests of the evening, and each addressed the meeting briefly.

MUSIC MISSIONARIES HERE ON HIKE OF 14,000 MILES

Paul E. Bray and Henry Duckett, missionaries of Canadian music, who are walking from Montreal to Hollywood on a goodwill tour, reached Wetaskiwin on Monday evening. They were guests at the Driford hotel, where they reached Wetaskiwin they had travelled 3,469 miles, and this city was the sixty-fourth important centre they had visited. They are both musical, and broadcast in Edmonton, and will fill a theatre engagement at Calgary. These young men are dressed in a smart blue uniform, and boasted that they have not, and will not, accept "tips" on this tour. The object of the tour is to popularize Canadian music, both in the Dominion and with the producers of talking pictures. They do not expect to reach Hollywood until September, 1931.

WOMAN IN THE CASE

One of the spectators at a football game had his pocket picked. As the thief was bolting he collided with and escorted him to a policeman.

"You say this man stole your watch," said the policeman. "What distinguishing feature was there about the watch?"

"It contained my sweetheart's photograph," replied the man.

"Ah, I see, a woman in the case!"

2000 FOWL ARE SHIPPED AT CAMROSE

Camrose, Nov. 14.—Two thousand chickens and hens, weighing about five tons, was the shipment made from the first poultry kill held at Camrose on Tuesday and Wednesday under the direction of The Alberta Poultry Pool, Limited. The pool supplied the equipment and help necessary for the killing, plucking and preparation for packing, and the grading to standards was also done by representatives of the organization. Every bird had to pass inspection by an officer of the Dominion Government. In nearly all cases the quality of the birds offered at the kill was considered very satisfactory and rather higher than anticipated. There was a smaller number of fowl brought in than had been expected but this was probably accounted for by the fact that many farmers are just now trying to finish their flocks. For the highest grade of fowl, the milk fed class, the initial payment made by the Pool was 17 cents. The prices paid for other grades varied with slightly lower figures.

ALBERTA EXHIBIT OF 200 ANIMALS ENTERED IN EAST

Some 200 choice animals will be shown as Alberta's contribution to the royal winter fair, opening in Toronto next week. They comprise a somewhat larger showing than last year, totalling 15 carloads and representing the usual Alberta standard of quality.

The stock was all selected by the provincial livestock board which is appointed by the breeders, and came from various parts of the province between Clyde in the north and Magrath in the south.

The entry list is made up mostly of beef cattle, in Herefords, Shorthorns and grade steers, the latter alone numbering five carloads and making the largest individual showing in the lot.

Receipts: Cattle, 689; Calves, 194; Hogs, 1884; Sheep, 1022.

Trading this week has shown a decidedly brisk tone and the market is considerably keener than has been the case for some time. The buying demand is broader and in consequence salesmen are finding no difficulty in placing their offerings, particularly of the better grades of light-weight butcher steers and heifers, to advantage. Prices on steers and heifers are fully 25c higher as compared to the close of last week and in spots a little more; cows are fully steady to strong, with buyers not grading quite so closely.

A few choice fed calves brought $7.00 to $7.50. Bulk of the good butcher steers selling at $5.00 to $5.50. Few bringing $5.75. Common to mediums $4.00 to $4.75. Good to choice heifers $5.00 to $5.50. Common to mediums $4.00 to $4.75. Bulk of the good butcher cows are bringing $3.75 to $4.00, choice handweights up to $4.25, medium cows $3.50 to $3.80, common to fair kinds $2.50 to $3.00. Cows and heifers $1.50 to $2.50; bulls $2.50 to $3.25.

All classes of stockers are moving fairly readily at fully steady to firm prices. Stocker and feeder steers selling at $4.50 to $5.00, heifers at $4.25 to $4.75 and cows $3.00 to $3.75.

There is no material change noticeable on the calf market. Good to choice light calves are selling at $7.50 to $8.50, good heavies at $6.00 to $6.50, and common to mediums at $4.00 to $5.00.

Hog receipts so far this week have been decidedly on the light order. What few offerings were on sale, brought $8.50 for hogs, $9.00 for select and $8.15 for butchers fed and watered. Cuts on the offgrades are unchanged and as follows: Heavies $11.00, extra heavies $11.50, No. 1 sows $2.00, all other sows $3.00 and rough hogs $4.00.

The sheep and lamb market is fairly active and firm. Bulk of the good lambs selling at $6.75 to $7.00, yearlings at $4.50 to $5.50 and ewes at $3.00 to $4.50.

Obituary

FRED HENRY VANOUCK

There passed away at the Wetaskiwin hospital on Wednesday, Nov. 12th, Fred Henry Vanouck of Duhamel, at the age of forty-four years and ten months. Deceased had been ill only a short time. He had resided in the Duhamel district for the past sixteen years, and leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and a family of small children. The funeral took place in the R.C. cemetery at Duhamel.

INGA MANGHILD MOEN
A gloom was cast over the community on Thursday last, when it was learned that Inga Manghild Moen, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Moen, had passed away at the Wetaskiwin hospital at the age of twenty-one years, eight months and twenty days. She was born in Bawlf on February 24th, 1909, and at the age of three months she was brought into fellowship with the trine God through the holy sacrament of baptism. At the age of eleven she came with her parents to Wetaskiwin, where she has since made her home. Four years later, having been instructed in the fundamentals of Christianity, she together with other young people of Bethel Lutheran congregation, publicly confessed through the rite of confirmation that it was her intention by the grace of God to continue faithful in her baptismal covenant.

She was never strong and robust in health, and as a young girl of nine she had had an attack of rheumatic fever, which kept her in bed for six weeks. Though everything possible was done she never succeeded in dispelling the stubborn disease from her system, and the persistent recurrence of the malady weakened her heart, and also brought about other complications. In spite of being deprived of many enjoyments possible for healthy youth, and being compelled to spend long weary weeks in bed, suffering untold agonies, she never murmured or complained. She was of a bright, congenial, optimistic nature, and always tried to see the bright side of things. She was always glad and willing to help in whatever capacity possible for her. She loved music and singing, and was never too sick or too tired when called upon. Her last public appearance in such capacity was about two months ago, when she sang at the funeral of one of her many friends. A couple of days later she was again obliged to take to her bed. Her condition seemed quite serious at times, and at others was quite hopeful. On Thursday, November 6, she was taken to the hospital, but things went on about the same as before. Her recovery was never despaired of, but the following Wednesday evening, she took a sudden turn for the worse. She realized that the end was approaching, and bade farewell to her parents and brother, and then sent her farewell message to her friends. She leaves to mourn her early departure, her parents and one brother, Thilmer, an uncle and aunt and several cousins at Millet, and a large number of friends and acquaintances in Canada and the United States.

The funeral services were conducted at the Norwegian Lutheran Church on Sunday last, Rev. O. Asper officiating. Rev. A. L. Elliott of the United Church, who some years ago had learned to know the deceased through his connection with the C.G.I.T., was present, and paid a warm tribute to her lovely character. Mrs. Asper, accompanied by Mrs. Condie, sang "He'll wipe the tear from every eye." Dr. B. L. Gullekson, accompanied by his sister, sang in Norwegian, "Den Store Hvide Flok vi se" (The Great White Throng). This a favorite song of the deceased and was sung by request.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, among them being from: The Family; Mr. and Mrs. A. Jensen; Mr. and Mrs. B. Portis; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bye and family; Crescent Rebekah Lodge; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Taylor and family; Mrs. A. Housley and Sons; Canadian Pacific Railway employees; Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams and family; Wang Sons of Norway; Mrs. Vold and Asta; Lillian Pelland and Margaret Gullekson; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Taylor; Miss Olive Wright; Mrs. J. Rorup; Mrs. L. Fench; Mr. and Mrs. Felling and family; Mrs. Purnell, Miss Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Thoman and Mr. and Mrs. Odell of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. Spokely, Mr. and Mrs. Berquist, Mrs.

The cash register stolen from the Red & White store at Wetaskiwin in the early morning of November 12th, was found by Gordon Inglis, a farmer who resides a few miles south of Millet, not by Corporal Collet of Wetaskiwin, as previously stated in the Edmonton Journal.

Mr. Inglis picked up the machine by the roadside near his farm about 5 p.m. in the afternoon of the day the robbery occurred, and took it at once to the office of Mr. A. P. Mitchell, M.L.A., at Millet, who immediately endeavored to notify Chief Kingzett by phone, but as the Chief had left by train for Edmonton in connection with the robbery, he could not be located. Corporal Collet was also out of town and could not be reached by Mr. Mitchell until 7 p.m. that evening, when he gave the Corporal details of the finding of the cash register. Corporal Collet came to Millet the following day and made a close inspection of the machine for the purpose of getting some clues that might lead to the identity of the robbers. Mr. Stoles, manager of the Red & White store at Wetaskiwin, also came up and identified the machine as the one stolen from his store.

We understand the police have some valuable clues, and sincerely hope they will soon capture the culprits and bring them to justice.

The merchants of Millet expect that their town may be next on the list for a touch, and are taking every precaution possible.

The remains were laid to rest in the Wetaskiwin cemetery.

Wetaskiwin Murder Case Recalled and Reviewed

Another true detective story drawn dislodged turf from a human head. From the files which record notable murder cases solved by the North West Mounted Police.

(From MacLean's Magazine, Nov. 15, 1930)

It was not yet ten o'clock of a Sunday night, but the small settlement of Wetaskiwin had taken off its boots and gone to bed, for the Sabbath was still a day of rest in 1901, particularly in June, when the gamble of fine weather demanded early rising for the many chores. One glimmer of light remained in the windows of the North West Mounted Police detachment, where Corporal H. A. Hetherington was about to follow the example of his neighbors.

The stocky, fair-haired non-com, still in his early thirties, had already served in the Force for sixteen years, less four that represented a civilian interval, after which he had re-engaged to stay. Nearly everybody likes to gamble, and it was the uncertainty of life in the Force that fascinated the corporal. He was willing to wager his time that something of enthralling interest would turn up. For weeks monotony might corrode his days, and then would come the case to test the limit of ability. One was due now, thought Hetherington, as he unlaced his boots.

A knock on the door interrupted the corporal's musings. The visitor was a rancher named Phillips who had been sufficiently disturbed, he said, by a gruesome discovery on his land to make the twenty-eight mile trip to the detachment. Fred Bullock, a new settler next door, had been hunting turkey nests that day in the clump of aspens between the houses. He had found places where the birds had been scratching, and in one copse with a sunken centre they had of the body, fortified the detective with much information. To Hetherington's chagrin, the face resisted the most tender efforts to wash away the disgusting soil with which it was encrusted, without removing the skin. It was a square strong face, the lower jaw heavy, the nose slightly flattened, and a perceptible gap showed between the stout incisors and eye-teeth. These were in excellent condition, showing no dental work. From the right side of the head the hair had disappeared, and there, skin was broken. The hair on top was sandy. It required no special divination to understand why this man had been buried in a trench almost revoltingly shallow, less than ten inches deep. He had been buried in the frosty half of the year. That the spade was sharp was shown by the cut turf and the tree roots severed, but the labor of digging deep had been apparently too great. This mute evidence fixed the period of burial at early spring, and rancher Phillips in a way confirmed it by recalling that he had tried to sink fence posts in April and had been stopped by frost at the ten-inch depth.

Murder!

The body was fully clothed in the country's custom—overalls, boots, and a fair-fitting coat. Hetherington noted that the overalls had been made in Kansas City, the coat in Kalamazoo. No other addresses could be found, with the exception of a Wyoming advertisement, some complimentary matches from a Wyoming maker, and a street-fair badge marked Kalamazoo and dated October 12-14, 1927. Some pieces of quartz, a .38 Smith and Wesson cartridge, buttons, a spool of thread, a peculiarly shaped metal instrument, and a pipstern completed Hetherington's list of findings in the pockets.

These items seemed singularly valueless at first glance, but collectively they suggested to the detective that the unknown was probably a recent arrival from the United States, that he had resided, if only temporarily, in Kalamazoo, and that his occupation had something in common with the piece of quartz and the metal instrument. Not much to work from, but at least a starting point.

The body stripped to its footwear revealed a well-scrubbed, powerful frame of perhaps 175 pounds weight, curiously rigid, and without trace of decomposition, although visible outlines where the belt had been showed that swelling had taken place and that decay was not far off. The limbs and fingers were sound and whole. The burmen, called from the uneventful neighborhood, were intensely interested and keen on helping with the measurements and gradual accumulation of data. No tape-measure being available, Hetherington improvised one from a piece of string and took down the necessary measurements. The body showed a length of five feet ten and a half inches, the overalls had a thirty-six inch waist and a thirty-two inch leg, the belt size was thirty-two inches, but the distance from buckle to used belt hole was thirty and three-quarter inches.

As the back of the head was brought into view, the face pressed forward at sight of a bruise behind the right ear with a blood clot under the left. Looking more closely, a hole was defined, and as the blood clot was washed away a second hole appeared. Since suicides do not bury themselves, foul play was established, and with the examination finished, the witnesses were now called on.

They had very little to contribute. The people from the house nearest to the grave, the Bullocks, were the only ones able to produce any matter of interest. Fred, the married son, told of discovering the grave while on his turkeynest hunt, and he produced a bundle of paper-covered reading matter which he had previously found beside the trail not far from the body. His younger brother told of the cap he had found, a greasy black cloth affair, lying thirty yards from the corpse. He had been wearing it ever since. Neither the rest of the Bullocks nor the Phillips nor their neighbors had any further light to throw on this clueless, motiveless, unidentified killing. The body seemed to have fallen like a meteor from nowhere and for no reason upon Asker. One thing seemed certain; the crude but good-natured neighborhood settlers were not implicated. They were too naively surprised and puzzled to be acting.

Hetherington, balked by the victim's personal effects, examined the reading matter, a series of light moral literature issued by "The Leisure Hour Library". Peculiarly, there were several sets of three issues stitched together as if by a sewing machine. While turning the pages he policeman remarked an almost obliterated pencil inscription on the top margin. With a glass he made out what seemed to be the name "L. C. Stainer" or "L. C. Stainer" but if the latter, the "P" was not dotted. The cap had no distinguishing mark unless it was the grease. The value of both books and cap was problematical, but they were tucked away with the other exhibits for future reference.

The verdict of the jury was easily reached: "Death, resulting from two bullet wounds, either of which would have been fatal, at the hand of a person or persons unknown." Their job was done, thought Hetherington, rather enviously, while he was only beginning. The country was huge. Settlement was rapidly growing. To find someone you knew would not be the lightest task. But the dead man's clothing, a list of the exhibits, the Leisure Hour books, he thought except that the faceless body started to pick up the scent in over was nearly six feet tall, fair haired, widening circles. He visited the stores, banks, boarding-houses, land offices, and other likely but less mentionable resorts, in Wetaskiwin, then in Ponoka, the nearest railway town to Asker, and finally in Edmonton. Hotel registers were searched and all postmasters asked to be alert for mail from Kalamazoo or Wyoming bearing the name of L. C. Stainer or Stainer. To have bought a suit and visited a street fair in Kalamazoo four years before was a very slender thread on which to depend. But Hetherington had detective instincts, theories largely alone. Hence the spectacle of Hetherington combing

In a boarding-house at Ponoka the mounted policeman spread his effects before the inmates and a Swede exclaimed: "Ya, sure, I know dat fel low. We eat at same place one time." He turned to his wife for confirmation and she nodded emphatic agreement.

Mrs. John McIntyre, Oxbow, Sask., writes: "For years I had bad bilious spells, and they would come on me about every two weeks. HON. WM. D. UPSHAW PRAISES NEW SARGON

Few men in America are known to more people from coast to coast than William D. Upshaw, former Congressman from the Fifth (Atlanta) District of Georgia. During his eight years in Washington he attained national prominence. A well known national magazine described him as "the most amazing man in Congress."

Obedient a grateful impulse because of the great physical blessing received through the use of Sargon, Mr. Upshaw writes that he is simply doing unto others as he would have them do unto him in making the following voluntary statement:

"My first experience with this remarkable invigorator came in the summer of 1928, when Sargon was brand new. I was suffering from nervous debility and an alarming physical depletion as the result of overwork on the lecture platform, and really feared I would not have strength enough to get me through the political campaign of July and August. Unbelievable as it may seem, two bottles taken with the Sargon Pills made no over. After the most hectic speaking campaign through which I ever passed, I came out actually feeling far stronger than when I began.

Later, rushing away on another busy speaking tour covering several States, I did not persevere in the daily use of the medicine until my system was thoroughly cleansed, with the result that twice since then I found myself again suffering from general debility, constipation and dizziness, and each time the Sargon combination has cleared me up and left me feeling tip-top.

"Living now in the aftermath of those refreshing experiences, I am moved by common gratitude to heartily commend this wholesome and effective medicine to everybody whose run-down condition calls for complete restoration."

Sargon may be obtained in Wetaskiwin at the Northern Drug Company Limited.

she squeezed his hand excitedly. Giles stood beside her, angry and silent.

Now he was more accustomed to the darkness he could see that there were about a dozen people in the room sitting in a ring, and apparently he was a guest. There was a quick aromatic scent in the air, and a curious feeling of nervous tension.

He saw now that the light from the shaded lamp was falling on the face and figure of a man whom he supposed must be the great Chrysler. A strange-looking man with a pale ashy face and dark hair, he drew a quick breath and there followed a little silence, broken again almost at once by the same sing-song voice—"Two women and one man—in the darkness all of them, and two of them will come out into the light, but the third will never see the sunshine again. Darkness—blindness! The blindness of the eyes—here, close beside me."

His clasped hands released one another, and moved forward in a curiously groping fashion as if seeking to find something. Giles did not know whether to be amused or angry. What fools women were, to be taken in by such a charlatan! He had moved back a step to find the switch of the light when suddenly those groping hands swooped down with a curious pouncing movement and fastened on something or some one in the silent ring of listeners.

A piercing scream rang through the silence of the room, a scream in the frightened voice of a woman, and then the cry of his own name: "Giles! Giles!"

It seemed an eternity until his fingers came into contact with the switch and still that cry went on: "Giles! Giles!"

It was Sadie's voice, he knew, and when at last the room was flooded with light he saw that she was standing up, her hands covering her face, her childish body swaying to and fro as if in great pain or terror, while the walling repetition of his name came from her lips monotonously again and again.

It was like a scene in a dream—the ring of half frightened women—and the strange figure of the man Chrysler as he rose slowly to his feet, a shocked, awakened look in his somnolent eyes. Then Mrs. Ardron began to cry hysterically, and the whimpering sound seemed to break the spell which was upon every one.

Giles took a quick stride forward: "Sadie!"

She turned swiftly at the sound of her name, her hands outstretched and when he took them in his, she clung to him, sobbing and shaking like a frightened child.

He kept protecting arms around his wife's slim figure as he glared round the room with furious eyes.

His mother, Doris and half a dozen other women whom he knew slightly and—Julie!

Julie was standing up, very stiff and straight, looking at him across the room, a pitiful, wondering question in her pretty eyes, her face quite

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT
WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
Giles Chittenden sets out to make Julie Farrow love him, intending to throw her over in revenge for the suicide of his brother Rodney, whom Julie had cast off. He succeeds, but finds that he has fallen desperately in love with her himself. Then he discovers that it was not this Julie Farrow, but her cousin of the same name, who had driven his brother to death. But Giles is married, to an American girl named Sadie Barrow, with whom he has not lived for a long time. Sadie unexpectedly turns up in London, at a party at Giles' mother's house, but both keep silent about their marriage.

Julie, disillusioned, enters into the wild night life of London, to try to drown her anguish. Lawrence Schofield wants to marry her. Lombard, who had first introduced her to Chittenden, demands money from Giles with the threat that if he is not paid he will tell Schofield that Chittenden and Julie spent the night together on the St. Bernard Pass. Later Julie confesses to Chittenden that she loves him.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
The two men made no attempt at a greeting. Chittenden merely said: "You're in rather a hurry, aren't you. However, you've saved me the trouble of sending it to you. You can have your two hundred."

Lombard smiled—an unpleasant smile.
"I want five hundred."
"You agreed for two."
"The price has gone up since last night."
There was an eloquent silence, and Lombard said calmly:
"Five hundred is not a high price to pay, surely—I cannot imagine that Schofield would crap at it in return for the favor you received last night. He shrugged his shoulders as he saw the passionate rage in Chittenden's face.
"It was you outside Miss Farrow's at last night?"
"I waited three hours—very patiently, you will admit."
With an effort Chittenden controlled himself.
"I give you just five seconds to get out of here," he said.
"Very well. You know what I intend to do. I shall tell Schofield what happened in Switzerland and again last night."
"Tell him, and I'll break every bone in your body."
Lombard went on evenly, not heeding the violent outburst.
"And I shall tell Miss Farrow that the woman she has been making her friend is your wife."
Chittenden was white to the lips, but he laughed.
"You can spare yourself the trouble. I have already told her myself."
For a moment the two men glared at one another, and it took all Chittenden's will-power to maintain his self-control, then Lombard said hoarsely:
"I'll make you sorry for this before I've done!"
"Get out, or I'll make you sorry for it now."
The door closed between them.
For some moments after Lombard had gone, Chittenden stood staring at the closed door.
He would see Julie at once and tell her the whole truth. But Fate was against him. He went to Julie's flat only to find that she had gone out to lunch. He went to several restaurants where he thought she might be but could not find her. There was nothing for it but to wait till the afternoon when they would meet at his mother's house.
He purposely arrived rather late. Mrs. Ardron, who was near the door, crept to him and whispered that he must be very quiet.
"It's so wonderful!" she breathed;

Christmas Turkeys

We expect to be ready to buy turkeys for Christmas about the end of November. Prices will be announced later, but we look for fairly satisfactory figures.

Turkeys will be handled this year under Government Inspection, therefore producers would do well to have their birds properly prepared. Good birds may go into lower grades if not handled properly.

TO SECURE TOP GRADES, all birds must be mature and as fat as possible. To prepare for killing, they must be well starved. If not, they turn green in a few days. When killing, a weight should be suspended from the head, secured by a hook inserted in beak. Do not tie around the neck, or hold neck with the hand as this causes discoloration. Be sure the bleeding is well done. Avoid rough handling as bruises will show. Pull the long feathers first. All the tail feathers and wing feathers must come off. Only the little fan at the end of the wings may remain. The neck must be plucked clean. All pin feathers must be removed. After killing keep in a cool place, but do not let them freeze. Do not market until cold, and do not pack closely until thoroughly chilled. When ready for market, take them to the Produce Company at Wetaskiwin and get your money.

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS

In Flanders' fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead—Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from falling hands, we throw
The torch; Be yours to lift it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders' fields.

Li-Col. John McCrae, France, 1917.

MENTAL HYGIENE

(By Dr. H. E. Smith, University of Alberta)

Issued under the auspices of Alberta Division of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene and the Department of Extension, University of Alberta.

Petty Theft

Does your boy take things that do not belong to him? If so, you may console yourself by remembering that petty stealing is a habit very common in boyhood. In a few cases the practice begins as early as the fifth or sixth year, but in the majority of cases it does not appear until the ninth or tenth year. Usually it represents but a passing phase of development in the process of becoming socially minded, of learning to distinguish "mine" from "thine." The stage seldom lasts for more than a year or two, frequently for only a few months. In the exceptional case it may last over a period of several years.

A Desire for Friendship
In some of the cases the cause is obvious. Ten-year-old Marion was caught pilfering money from the teachers' canteen. When seen she was poorly dressed, thinly clad, unkempt in appearance, and very unhappy. The family had recently moved to the district and Marion had found no friends. The home life was bad, the mother ill, and the little girl had to do all the house work. When asked why she took the money she said that all the other girls had ten cents to go to a movie show on Saturday afternoon but she never had a cent. She was very fearful and penitent.

Obviously this was not a case for punishment. A sympathetic teacher offered to befriend the child and to give her a few cents weekly for cleaning brushes, running errands, and keeping her own face and hands clean. The results were immediate. For seven months Marion has been a model child in school—trustworthy and contented and clean. She goes to the movies once in a while, and above all feels that she is "one of the group." All that she needed was to develop some feelings of self-respect and of personal worth.

The Usual Treatment
Stealing, like measles, is common in childhood, but though common it is none the less serious. Neglect may induce a chronic condition, or complications. The average boy in the average home, when he has measles, gets sent to bed and has his diet restricted. Such simple treatment is usually effective. Similarly the average boy in the average home, when he is caught pilfering receives the old-fashioned application of the rod in some form. That too is usually effective. Possibly a modified form of the rod might be less hazardous and yet more effective than the actual birch switch or the razor strap. It might be better to demand restitution or substitution, or the equivalent value in some form of work, or the loss of some privilege. Frequently punishment is not called for at all, but rather the removal of the conditions responsible for the offense. In any case the offender must be impressed with the fact that our social order is based upon property rights.

Neighborhood NEWS

MILLET

St. Norbert Church held their bazaar in Phynon's hall on Saturday, Nov. 15th, and it was very successful. The ladies are very grateful to Mr. Scott and Allan's Drug Store for their very kind donations, and to the Wellington Cafe, Whyte & Orr, Millet Mercantile, Burns' Meat Market and Mr. Mitchell for their help. Also to Mr. J. Gillies, Clifford McManus, Alvin Huffman, and Mr. C. B. Carr for making the bazaar such a success, as well as all others who gave assistance.

Mr. W. Humbolt won the quilt and Mr. Phil Mullen the doll in the raffles. The satin quilt went to the highest bidder, Mr. Tom McHugh.

NEW SWEDEN

Mr. and Mrs. Albin Swanson were Sunday guests at Phillip Anderson's. The special Thanksgiving program and sale at the Swedish Mission Church on Friday evening was well attended, quite a number from here being present.

Rev. Wickstrom has been canvassing the district with a petition of prohibitionists. Gustaf Anderson has been spending a few days at Buck Lake, where, Dame Rumer says, he has taken a homestead.

We can readily understand why people, that is, married people, build on to their houses, but why, oh why, do bachelors need more room?

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Callies had the misfortune to lose their house by fire on Thursday afternoon. The fire started during the heavy windstorm through a faulty chimney. The building and contents were an almost complete loss, and were only partly covered by insurance. At present Mr. and Mrs. Callies are staying with Ernest Harris, until further arrangements can be made.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindstrom and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lindholm of New Norway, on Monday last.

Causes of Stealing
The causes of stealing are many: insufficient or excessive parental affection, lax of inconsistent discipline, feelings of insecurity in the home, failure in school, desire to buy the attentions of companions, disturbing sex experiences, bad companions, lack of wholesome occupation and exercise, suggestion from movies, feelings of inferiority, and no doubt many others.

If possible, get at the root of the trouble. A correct diagnosis is invaluable and may represent the difference between successful and unsuccessful treatment. Yet a diagnosis is not always possible. At the first symptoms of physical illness you apply what remedies you can and trust to a subsequent diagnosis to refine your procedure. So in the case of stealing, where diagnosis may be exceedingly difficult or even impossible you must still do what is possible.

The Right Type of Appeal
In general appeal to the highest motive to which the offender will respond. Appeal first to an ideal of justice or of honesty. If this doesn't work appeal to family traditions, parental respect, or to the habit of obedience. As a last resort appeal to the motive of fear. But it is always well to bear in mind that a sharp reproof at the beginning may be better medicine than much moralizing later on.

A SERIOUS CASE

A rather elderly-looking patient was shown into the doctor's surgery. "So you have severe headaches, pains in the back and bilious attacks?" asked the doctor. "H'm, what is our age, madam?" "Twenty-five," she coyly replied. "The doctor continued to write, "Yes—and loss of memory, too," he murmured.

HILLSIDE

Mr. H. G. Young returned from Winnipeg Sunday night.

The weather for the past week has been ideal for this time of year, and many of the farmers are taking advantage of it and getting their barns in shape for the cold weather.

A number of the W.I. members journeyed to the home of Mrs. Phillips last Wednesday, where they spent a pleasant afternoon. On Friday evening a team from the Lone Ridge Junior U.F.A. will debate with a team from the Hillside Juniors in the school house. All are welcome.

Don't forget the card party and box social on the 28th.

HILLSIDE U.F.W.A.

The November meeting was held at the home of Mrs. C. Runte, with nine members present, who responded to the roll call with "Good Books for children."

Mrs. T. H. Howes was elected as delegate to the convention held in Wetaskiwin. Mrs. L. W. Marr gave a report on the winter's program. The new cook books were discussed and it was decided to order a dozen or more, and anyone wanting one should order them from the secretary. Owing to the fact that the book is larger and that there was some difficulty in getting them printed, the price has been raised from 65c to 75c.

An invitation from the Millet Local to be their guests at their November meeting was accepted.

Mrs. Young spoke on current events. Mrs. Howard Marr gave an instructive paper on "How to teach children etiquette."

A report on "Peace and Arbitration" by Mrs. Hoskins brought a pleasant and interesting meeting to a close, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Howes. The roll call will be "What the world is saying."

THE BEER-ROOM PETITION
Dear Sir:

The petition now being circulated, it is proclaimed, is to abolish the beer-room. But Mr. Hull, secretary of the Prohibition Association, told a meeting of Edmonton Prohibitionists that it is but the first step in a campaign to bring about a return to total Prohibition. A more public, published declaration, however, states that the sale of liquors from Government Vendors' Stores is not to be disturbed. These peculiar tactics are designed to enlist the assistance of those who prefer to purchase and use alcoholic beverages in their own private homes, to take away the humble glass of beer from the working-man.

Afterwards, when as a consequence of the first step bootleggers become both numerous and prosperous—as they are now in Saskatchewan—to the great detriment of law and order and to the especial detriment to the youth of the country "Liquor Control has failed" will be the cry, and a demand for total Prohibition will be made.

Thus it is that avowed Prohibitionists agree, for the moment, to the sale of hard liquor in bulk while they attempt to eliminate the lightest beverage, now available in very small quantity. While an attack is developed against an excellent piece of social legislation that is working so well that those officials having the duty of preserving law and order suggest no changes in the Liquor Control Act. The fact which has produced better social and economic results than any similar Act in Canada.

I warn the readers of your paper that some statements and figures which have come under my notice,

THE RULING PASSION

A woman arriving in this country after a short visit to the continent was asked the usual question by the customs official at the landing port—"Anything to declare, madam?"

"No," she replied, sweetly, "no thing."

"Then, madam," said the official, "am I to take it that the fur tail I see hanging down under your coat is your own?"

SCHEME TO FIX GRAIN PRICES BEFORE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Winnipeg, Nov. 17.—Alarmed at 60-cent levels for No. 1 Northern wheat, Prairie premiers Sunday night were speeding eastward in an effort to seek some solution for the low-price grain problem. After three days of conference with Pool and lending bank officials, the premiers departed Saturday with Ottawa and Toronto as their Eastern destinations.

No statement was made before the three government leaders boarded the train, but attention was centered on an announcement made by Premier John Bracken of Manitoba early Saturday after a late conference the night before. Mr. Bracken said that the premiers had a definite plan to place before Premier R. B. Bennett on his return from overseas with a view to securing Federal action in stabilizing the price of wheat.

It was assumed that the precipitate departure of the premiers for the east was hastened by the four-cent drop in values on the Winnipeg wheat market Saturday, sending quotations down to a level by far the lowest ever recorded on the Winnipeg exchange. Neither Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta nor Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan has commented as yet on the situation, admittedly more serious in the Western prairies, where bad weather has stopped threshing again.

Stay of the premiers in Toronto, it was understood, will be occupied with conferences with banking heads, in connection with the prairie governments' guarantees of Wheat Pool loans on the 1929 crop. Denials have been issued by banking officials in the West of reports current on the exchange last week that the banks, pressing for payment, were forcing the Pools to unload on a weakened market.

Whether or not an agreement was reached with western bank leaders by the premiers was not known, but it was stated that ratification by Eastern officials would be necessary in any case.

LARGEST TURKEY FARM IS WOMAN'S

Ardenode, Alberta, Nov. 8th.—Nine years ago Mrs. W. A. Freeman, of Ardenode, Alberta, a native of Wisconsin, U. S. A., won a pair of bronze turkeys in a raffle. She now has the largest turkey ranch in Canada and is the acknowledged queen of turkey raising in the Dominion. Her turkeys will return a revenue of $10,000 this year.

The winning of the pair of turkeys in the raffle suggested to Mrs. Freeman the idea of raising turkeys as a side line. This year she has raised 2,500 birds. Three hundred hens, all government inspected, have supplied the demand for eggs in 1930 and 45 of the most perfect hens have been selected for first class breeding stock. A revenue of $2,000 has already been obtained this year from the sale of eggs and $2,500 from the breeding stock. The receipts from the sale of table birds for Thanksgiving and Christmas are expected to bring this year's total up to $10,000.

The Freeman farm on which the turkeys are raised has a creek running through it, which supplies a constant and plentiful supply of good water, an essential for successful turkey raising. The soil is sandy, which assures good drainage. Most of the chicks are hatched in incubators. After hatching the chicks are sheltered for about ten days in large coops and then are allowed to roam. The main flock is kept on about 300 acres of land, fenced in. Scrupulous attention is paid to the cleanliness of the sheds, roosts, etc., which are sprayed with kerosene from time to time to destroy fleas, lice, etc.

And then for a moment nobody moved or spoke, but Chittenden's arms fell from his wife and he took an involuntary step away from her.

She looked up, her face white and distorted.

"Giles!" and then before any one could move to help her she fell fainting at his feet.

Chittenden was very pale and his voice was rough and uneven as kind hands carried Sadie from the room. He was conscious of impending disaster.

"We've sent for a doctor," his out of the room. Mrs. Aspin turned would have touched her and both their faces were white.

"There's no need to pretend any longer," she said with a harsh breath.

"Julie—" Chittenden broke out again desperately then stopped as the door opened beneath his mother's agitated hand.

"Giles—they want you at once—the doctor sent me for you—oh, Giles!" she caught his arm with ineffectual hands. "I don't understand! I feel as if I am going mad, or as if every one else is—what do they all mean? And if it's the truth why didn't you tell me? Sadie is saying awful things—she must be light-headed! She says she's your wife! How can she be your wife when you are not married?"

Giles turned on his heel and strode to the door of the room. Mrs. Aspin turned mother said. "Julie is staying with her."

A piercing scream rang through the silence of the room, a scream in the frightened voice of a woman, and then the cry of his own name: "Giles! Giles!"

"It's only an ordinary faint," Doris said contemptuously. "I'm surprised at Sadie being such a fool."

The others had all gone and Chittenden stood with an elbow on the mantel-shelf staring down at the grate which was filled with flowers and ferns. He could think of nothing but that pitiful, wondering question in Julie's eyes.

What was she thinking? What had she guessed?

What a fool he had been not to tell her the truth last night; she would have understood and forgiven him then. Would she understand or forgive him now?

It seemed an eternity until the door opened behind him and Julie came in. Chittenden turned. He made a swift movement towards her as if to take her in his arms, then stopped.

This was not the woman who had clung to him only last night and whispered how much she loved him—this was not even the wild, broken Julie that would take form and find utterance in her brain—leglessness during the past unhappy weeks—this was a woman whom he never had seen before, with cold eyes that accused him harshly even before she spoke.

"Sadie is no better. The doctor has just come. Would you like to go to her now?"

Giles flushed scarlet. It was such an unexpected challenge.

"Why should I go to her? What do you mean?" he asked roughly. They were the last words he meant to say and yet for the life of him he could not have controlled their utterance.

Julie shrugged her shoulders.

"I only thought—in the circumstances—"

He covered the ground between them in a stride and caught her by the shoulders.

He felt her slim body stiffen beneath his grasp, and her eyes met his unflinchingly.

"How long have you known Sadie? Why did she call out to you and run to you like that? What is she to you?"

There was an agonised question in her voice though she tried desperately to keep it unconcerned.

She moved back a step when he would have touched her and both their faces were white.

love and his protection—the protection she had claimed only that afternoon in her hysterical fear.

The maid came tapping at the door. "Aren't you very wet, Miss? Can I dry your clothes for you?"

"No, no. I'm not wet, and I don't want anything, you need not wait."

She heard the girl move reluctantly away and then a moment later the shutting of the front door. But it was a long time before Julie moved or stirred. The room was quite dark save for the yellow light from the street lamp outside, and the fitful rain had settled into a steady down-pour and was beating against the window.

Miss Newstart seating herself between two much-engrossed elderly gentlemen, exclaimed: "A rose between two thorns."

"No," retorted one, "say rather a newspaper in Canada has exceeded tongue sandwich."

EARLY DIAGNOSIS

Remarkable progress has been made in the campaign against tuberculosis. In spite of the fact that no specific means of preventing or curing this disease has been discovered, nevertheless, year by year, its ravages are being lessened. This progress is encouraging and should serve to stimulate us to even greater efforts to overcome a disease which still remains one of the most powerful foes against which we have to contend.

We should never lose sight of the fact that tuberculosis is preventable and curable. The majority of persons become infected with the germs of tuberculosis early in life, but not all of them develop the disease. In most cases, the germs lie dormant because the individual's powers of resistance are maintained at a sufficiently high level to hold the germs in check.

It is when our resistance has broken down that the dormant germs become active and tuberculosis develops. The disease is always due to the action of the germs which got their opportunity when, through bad living conditions, worry, over-fatigue, or some debilitating disease, the resistance of the body is weakened.

If the disease does develop, the question of cure naturally becomes the most important consideration. Whether or not the disease will be cured, and the length of time required for cure, depend chiefly upon the early diagnosis of the disease.

When the disease is diagnosed early, there is every chance of its responding to proper treatment. The longer the interval between the onset of the disease and the diagnosis, the more difficult is the cure.

Each year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Just rubbed on, Vicks gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled, and, at the same time, acts through the skinlike plaster.

Now 26 million jars used yearly of the disease and the beginning of treatment, the less chance there is for cure, and the time required for treatment is proportionately increased. A practical consideration is that it is in the group of persons who have been exposed to tuberculosis that new cases most frequently develop. The more intimate and prolonged the exposure, especially if during childhood, the greater the likelihood of tuberculosis.

Any person who has been exposed to tuberculosis, and this generally means anyone who has lived in a home where there has been an active case, should be regularly examined in order that the disease, if it does occur, may be detected in its earliest stages. Such a person should, of course, avoid those conditions which we have mentioned as being likely to predispose to the development of the disease by lowering resistance.

The person who, for any reason, suspects that he may have tuberculosis should seek an examination without delay. If there is nothing wrong, then the mind is set at rest; if disease is present, the sooner this is known, the better. Early diagnosis is the key which unlocks the door and admits the hope of cure.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 124 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

WORKLESS TEACHERS
SUBJECT OF PLEAS
TO ALBERTA GOVT.

Viewing with alarm the many unemployed teachers now in this province, the Alberta Teachers' Alliance is asking the provincial government to see that teachers in distressful circumstances are looked after in any arrangements being made by various authorities to alleviate the present economic crisis.

Special stress is laid by the Alliance on the adopting of some adequate system of selection in respect to candidates for admission to our normal schools; increasing of the length of the period for such training; raising of the standard of admission to such training institutions to that required by progressive school boards, namely a grade 12 or first-class training for all public school teachers, and a university degree standing for all high school and inspection or departmental positions; assisting the teachers in their efforts to have placed upon the statute books of the province an adequate retirement scheme for Alberta teachers, thereby enabling to retire immediately those who are now too old to carry on in an efficient manner.

URGING PROVINCE TO DOUBLE GRANTS FOR HOSPITALS

Declaring that in view of the rapidly increasing number of auto accident cases and the present depression in agriculture the rural hospitals are finding unusual difficulty in financing, the Alberta Hospital Association and the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses, in the closing session of their joint convention at Calgary on Friday, asked that the provincial per capita grant be increased from 50 cents to $1 a day.

Auto accidents are becoming a serious burden to the rural hospitals, the delegates agreed, and all were unanimous in the opinion that the province should make some supplementary provision for financing the care of such cases.

The greater part of the concluding session was given over to a discussion of whether or not it would be advisable to have a separate school for the training of nurses, similar to the normal school for teachers. This discussion was led by Dr. M. T. MacEachern of the American College of Surgeons, Chicago, and Dr. G. Harvey Agnew of Toronto. The matter was finally tabled pending the publication of several reports now in the process of preparation.

Here and There

The Canadian Government is co-operating with ranches and exporters in their efforts to secure a market in Great Britain for Canadian cattle, said Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, who visited Montreal recently to inspect an experimental shipment of western steers at the stockyards in that city. The cattle, comprising 416 head of shorthorns, Herefords, Angus and pure-bred steers, were brought to Montreal on Canadian Pacific Railway for shipment to Manchester, England.

Analyzing the causes of business depression in Canada, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in a speech before the American Institute of Steel Construction, recently recalled American suggestions that cancellation of foreign debts due the United States would cure present world conditions and benefit the country that cancelled them. "It is not surprising," said Mr. Beatty, "that your men of great vision have reached the conclusion that if they (the war debts) were removed, industry would be stimulated, trade would expand, and prosperity would return, and out of the revivification of the world conditions would inevitably come great benefit to the United States."

A forty-mile ski marathon from Lake Louise to Banff will be one of the big features of the Banff Winter Carnival which will open February 1st next. The run will cross turbulent mountain streams and will follow ascending and descending ridges of great height. "No smooth travelling in the last half," is the way ski-ing experts who have planned it, describe the event.

Fur farming in Canada is now established as a leading industry. The latest available figures show that the industry to-day represents a capital value of $22,980,517, of which $16,401,453 is invested in fur-bearing animals. Prince Edward Island is the leader in the industry, with Ontario and Quebec not far behind. Ten years ago total value of fur-bearing animals on fur farms in Canada was placed at $4,723,105.

Showing of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the month of September, in which an increase of $1,721,645 was shown in net earnings over the total for September of last year, in the face of an actual decrease in gross earnings, is a tribute to a management's ability to adapt itself to unfavorable conditions, according to a financial authority of Montreal. The showing itself is not an indication of improved business for gross earnings were only $19,192,325 as against $19,551,317 one year ago, a decline of $358,992, but it is a favorable development for the company itself. What was done was to cut down operating expenses to $14,460,597, shown in September one year ago, to $12,460,660 for September, 1930. Some indication of what retrenchment in overhead costs could accomplish was given in the August figures, when starting out with a decline in gross earnings of $2,132,387, the company was able to show a natural increase in net of $358,276 over the corresponding period of last year. The results for September are naturally even better than this.

WEST WHEAT GROWERS WILL BE HELPED UNDER QUOTA

London, Nov. 14.—Giving qualified blessing to the wheat quota, Premier Bennett at the official closing of the Imperial economic conference this morning said that while he would have preferred the tariff preference such as he had outlined at the outset, nevertheless the quota would be "a considerable help to the Western Canada wheat growers."

He added that he was confident that at the adjournment conference to be held in Ottawa next year every unit of the Empire would be willing to subscribe to the doctrine of protection under which Canada has maintained and extended her prosperity.

The prime ministers met in an atmosphere of cordiality, but they could not conceal beneath the warmth of their thanks for the British government's hospitality, certain disappointment that the economic conference had resulted only in a pledge from Premier MacDonald's government that the existing preferential margin given Dominion products, chiefly those of Australia and New Zealand, would not be reduced for three years.

However, they concentrated on the fact that the conference was not really over. It had only adjourned to Ottawa, in 1931, where greater results might be looked for.

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1882 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripped; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

DON'T BLAME THE TEACHER

Every parent is vitally interested and should sift out the causes of his child's lack of achievement at school. Ask yourself the following searching questions:

Is my child handicapped with poor health? If so, I can and must remedy it by consulting an expert and introducing Junior Red Cross into the schools.

Is he lazy and indolent? If so, I must teach him to discipline himself and energize his habits of living.

Is he the victim of late hours, undue excitement of social events outside,

WINTER MANAGEMENT OF THE BROOD SOW

(Experimental Farms Note)

Dry, well ventilated and reasonably warm sleeping quarters, exercise, good wholesome food and plenty of water from which the chill has been removed, are the main essentials in the successful handling of brood sows during the winter months.

Expensive and elaborate piggeries for the winter housing of dry brood sows are unnecessary. All they require is a clean, well ventilated and reasonably dry sleeping berth. Such conditions are difficult to provide in either a permanent piggery or an ordinary stable as permanent shelters are likely to be poorly ventilated, damp and unsanitary and there is little opportunity for exercise. Brood sows do not suffer much from low temperatures providing the shelter is dry, free from draughts and of such nature as to protect the animals from wind and storm.

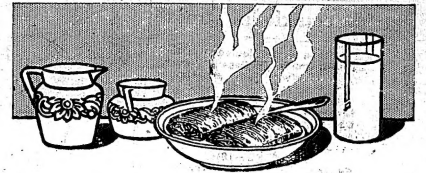

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, the 6 by 8 foot portable colony houses have proven very satisfactory winter shelters for dry brood sows. A number of these are ranged side by side and crated and banked to the eaves with straw, leaving the fronts open and facing south. A heavy burlap sack hung over the door breaks the wind and provides sufficient protection for the doorway. Each 6 by 8 foot colony house will comfortably accommodate 4 mature sows. The colony houses are placed some little distance from the feed trough in order to force the sows to take exercise. Weak pigs are probably more often due to lack of exercise on the part of the sow than to any other factor.

An important consideration in the care of the brood sow is the feed. Throughout the winter she should be kept in a thrifty condition but not fat. Over-feeding of breeding stock will almost invariably produce small litters of weak unthrifty pigs with a high mortality. The brood sow should not be fed exclusively on a grain ration but must have some muscle and bone building material if she is to produce a large and thrifty litter. This she can obtain from skim-milk, tankage or legume hay. A satisfactory grain ration is made up of two parts ground oats, one part ground barley and one part bran fed dry. A mixture of 76 pounds slacked coal, 20 pounds salt, 3 pounds ground limestone and 1 pound of sulphur placed in a box for the sows will supply the mineral nutrients which are needed for the development of the unborn young.

As a measure to prevent goitre in the young pigs, potassium iodide is dissolved in one gallon of water and one tablespoonful of the liquid per sow is added to the drinking water.

THE WORK OF MENTAL HEALTH

(By Dr. R. C. Wallace, President of the University of Alberta)
Importance of Mental Health now

Preventive medicine has only in recent years been accepted as a responsibility of the State. Still more recently has the public at large realized the importance of the study of mental disease to the end of diminishing the alarming prevalence of mental disorder. The State has for many years provided in some measure institutional treatment for the care of the mentally unhealed. But it is just now beginning to recognize its far higher duty—that of establishing and maintaining conditions such that institutional care for the mentally afflicted may be less and less in demand.

National Committee for Mental Hygiene

A Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene was organized for the purpose of studying conditions of mental health. It is a part of an international organization constituted to the same end. This committee is concerned in part with the investigation of abnormal mental attitudes in children of pre-school and school age. The aim is that parents and teachers may be instructed in the best methods of dealing with the more difficult mental attitudes of young children. It is concerned also with the causes which produce mental retardation, or mental deficiency, and with the conditions of training and education which make possible the greatest progress of which such children are capable. For the success of this work it is necessary that the fundamental principles of child psychology be understood by parents and teachers. Much of the work of the Committee is therefore directed towards the education of adults who have to deal with young people in order that they may achieve a better understanding of both normal and abnormal behavior, and in order that treatment, teaching and discipline may be based upon adequate knowledge of each individual case.

Psychopathic Wards
A further step has been the establishment of psychopathic wards in hospitals for the observation and treatment of incontinent conditions of mental derangement. It is this frequently possible to discover causal factors in social or family conditions, and frequently possible also to modify or remove the conditions which would accentuate or prolong the disorder.

University of Alberta Recognizes Importance of Work
The University of Alberta has entered wholeheartedly into the mental health program and, with the financial assistance of the National Committee, is training men and carrying forward research under the Department of Psychology in the University. A mental clinic is conducted at the out-patient clinic of the University Hospital, work is being carried on in the schools with retarded and problem children, lectures are being given over the radio and at several provincial centres on problems of mental hygiene, and special instruction is being given to mothers.

University and Department of Health Co-operate

A close relationship is being established through the provincial psychiatrist between the work of the Department of Psychology and that of the Provincial Health Department. Studies are going forward in the province to discover what racial or social conditions are most productive of maladjustment, and to canvass the extent of mental disorders of various kinds in the outlying districts. One important outcome of the work that has already been done is the interest which some of the most promising students are finding in this phase of social service, and in the training which they are receiving for life-work in this field.

May I ask on behalf of the University, the interest and sympathy of the citizens of Alberta in the work which is being conducted in the field of mental health.

LEAVE DESOLATION; PUT BIG PROVINCE TO FIRE AND SWORD

Hong Kong, Nov. 15.—An unvarnished report from Canton today said Communists retreating from Kian, Kiangsi province, had passed through the town of Hsingshi, which they put to the sword and set afire, killing some 2,000 men, women and children in a few hours.

Two thousand houses were set afire in the town, the report said. The invasion occurred last week. Some 5,000 more of the inhabitants were carried off for ransom by the reds, and approximately $2,000,000 damage was done.

The Reds, under the prominent Communist leaders Chu Teh, Mao Tse-tung and Pan Teh-oh, were driven out of Kian by Nationalist forces last week, unconfirmed despatches said. The Communist forces, numbering about 20,000, fled southward in the direction of Kankow, hotly pursued by the Nationalists.

The reds, it is said, then turned

There was a splendid crowd in attendance at the bazaar which was held in Phynon's hall on Saturday last by the R.C. Church, and judging from appearances it must have been a huge success in every way.

Quite a few of our local returned men visited Wetaskiwin on Tuesday evening to attend the annual Service Men's re-union, which was held in the curling rink. The rumor that some of them had to borrow a shoeborn to help get their cap on next morning, is emphatically denied.

180 MILES ROADS IN NATIONAL PARKS ARE OIL-SURFACED

Oiling of highways in national parks has resulted in 180 miles being surfaced with that material in the last two years, states J. M. Wardle, chief engineer for Dominion Parks. This dust-laying oil has given good results and has proven valuable in meeting conditions caused by the ever-growing volume of tourist traffic.

Speaking of Jasper park, Mr. Wardle said that some 100 miles of roads have been built there in recent years, of which 80 are up to standard, while the other sections are passable.

HELPFUL THOUGHTS

(By Walt Mason)

Sometimes I grow sore and peevish as I suffer day by day, for expenses seem quite thievish that an invalid must pay. All my savings are for lotions and for pills of diverse tints, and for powders and for potions, and for poultices and splints. Brooding over all such matters I grow grouchy and morose, and a flood of briny splatters from my eyes and down my nose. Then I think how my condition is a boon to other wights, how I've helped the learned physician to ascend financial heights. For the doc is busy building now, a mansion tall and fair, all ornate with paint and gilding, and with gables everywhere. It will have a butler's pantry and a kitchen for the cooks, and a shaft for Elmer Gantry to take a lot of other books.

Can you view the doctor's dwelling in the sunshine or the rain, this glad thought within me swelling, that I have not lived in vain. And the druggist, he is riding in his costly limousine, with the money I'm providing, with my store of good long greens. He can buy himself old Masters, priceless books to fill his home, with the coin I spend for plasters and for red mercurchrome. With respect he will address me when he sizes up his wad. It should make my old heart merry when I look around and see how the good apothecary has been boosted thus by me. And the calm and stately nurses, those white robed aristocrats, they have rubies in their purses, they can buy themselves new hats. Many people are enjoying luxury they'd never know, if the gout were not destroying all the tendons in my toe.

How Women Lose Fat In England

How would you like to lose unhealthy fat that you don't need and don't want, and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent abdomen, and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal, and at the same time develop that turgor for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales to-day and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts. Take one all tastefully every morning in a glass of hot water, and when you have finished the first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you will know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat, and you'll also know that the six vitalizing salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

That's the way Englishwomen keep slim—why not you?

ACID STOMACH

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is in a glass which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. Harmless, and tasteless, and yet its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, once you learn how quickly this method acts.

Be sure to get the genuine, "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Mrs. Russell Laird, 454 Bagot St., Kingston, Ont., writes:—"About a year ago my husband was terribly bothered with boils on his arms and legs, and couldn't get any thing to clear them up for any length of time. He went to doctors, and the medicine they gave him would make them disappear, but they would come back in no time. One day I was reading the newspaper and saw where Burdock Blood Bitters was advertised for this trouble, so I decided to try it, and he hadn't taken much more than one bottle when his skin was all cleared up. We think B. B. B. is a wonderful medicine."
